Mr. Gonzales, she said, visited his uncle at the infirmary there, and when asked if she had heard Mr. Gonzales make any reference to Mr. Tillman in his conversations with Captain Elliott, she repiled in the affirmative. On her direct examination the witness made this statement:

"Mr. Gonzales asked me if I considered Colonel Tillman a brave man. I told him I certainly did. He said he did not; that he had made Mr. Tillman show the white feather twice; that Colonel Tillman had challenged him to two duels, which he did not asknowledge, and that Colonel Tillman had no more resentment than to come to him in the hotel lobby and offer him a cigar, which he declined."

"Was it on one or more occasions that you heard him speak of Mr. Tillman in this derogatory manner?" counsel asked.

In the last contest, won by P. J. Filippen, on 46 out of 50.

This medal is to be contested for next Saturday on the grounds of the Albemarie Gun Club, the winner to be the absolute owner of it. The conditions under which the medal was shot, have been changed so none are now barred from entering the contest on that day.

Had Little Trouble Beating Washington and Lee.

Virginia Made Three Touch-Downs in First Half and Two in Second-Lexingtonians Gained the Five-

Yards but Once.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., Oct. 3. though Captain Johnson and Quarterback Pollard were out of the game, Virginia found little trouble this afternoon in defeating Washington and Lee, 23 to 0. Three touchdowns were scored in the first half, and two in the second, Council converted three of these into goals. The visiting eleven coached by Byles, of Princeton, was in poor condition, and hence Virginia's trainers were given but little opportunity to judge of the team's strength. It was hoped that the contest would be a stiff one as last year, so that the weak points of the individual players could be found out in time to be corrected before the game with the Navy on rected before the game with the Navy on next Saturday.

To-day's contest was long drawn out, as some Washington and Lee player was hurt in every scrimmage. Council, Watkins and Heald did most of the ground gaining for Virginia, and Spates and Elmer did good work in the line. Williamson, the scrub center, who took Conner's place, put up a star game. Early in the contest he broke through and blocked a kick, which was responsible for the first touchdown. On the ends, Coach Hull and Cook showed improvement.

The Lexingtonians were able but once to make the necessary five yards. On the defensive, they showed up better, and several times held Virginia on downs. Captain Trundle, Masterson and Lewis did most of the playing. The visitors made better the control of the game

WEAK ON OFFENSIVE.

Captain Trundle, Masterson and Lewis did most of the playing. The visitors made a bold stand at the opening of the game foreing Virginia to kick at the outset After gaining five yards in three attempts, Williamson dashed through the line and blocked Moomaws kick on the Lexington lads' 25-yard line. Randolph sprinted for twelve, and Heald went the remaining distance for a touchdown.

After considerable offside play and some fumbling, Virginia soon settled down to hard work, and Watkins was sent across the line for the second touchdown. The credit for the third touchdown, made just before time was callet for the close of the half, is due to Watkins, who carried the ball fifty yards in three trials. The two touchdowns in the second half were scored by Council. Some pretty runs, however, were made by Heald and Randolph. The last named, who got his foot-ball education at the Episcopal High School, once got around Washington and Lee's right end for forty yards.

Nucleus for the New Eleven-Old Players in Harness Again-The

The heroes of the base-ball season have packed up their belongings and gone into hibernation until next spring, when they will again emerge and begin to limber up. Before they have left the field the diamond has been converted into the great striped rectangle known as the gridiron, whereon the giant gladiators of the football game disport themselves in their armor. The foot-ball season is indeed well advanced now. The days of limbering up now and rolling around on the hardening ground, of passing and catching the big leather spheroid, falling on the ball and lining up and breaking away against an imaginary line have passed, and the can-lining up and breaking away against an imaginary line have bassed, and the candidates for the first eleven are now lining up daily against the scrubs and endeavoring to advance the ball or to stop the ndvance of their opponents. Almost every Wednesday and Saturday the larger teams play practice games against lighter elevens, and some of these prove very interesting matches, for occasionally the smaller schools muster a formidable eleven and give the larger school all the exercise they desile, and more.

In Southern foot-ball the interest usually centers in the annual games between the Universities of Virginia and North Carclina, doughty old rivals, whose annual meetings on the gridforn on Thanksgiving Day always guarantee a stubborr and gritty struggle. Usually the Carolinlans are the lighter, but the fleeter, team, and depend more upon well developed teamplay than upon mere weight and strength. Last season the Carolinlans had a small, light-haired back, who scared his upponents by the frequency with which he landed a goal from the field, for field goals count as much as a touchdown.

THE MILITARY RIVALS.

Another game which is always interesting in this State, and hardly second in excitement and rivalry to the Virginia-Carolina team, is the annual struggle for supremacy between the Virginia Polytechnic and Virginia Military Institutes, the two military schools of the State. For several years the V. P. I., or Blacksburg, men, as they are known, have proved easily superior to their opponents, but this was largely owing to the individual piowess of Carpenter and Counselman, two of the greatest ground-gaining backs and most terrific line-plungers in Southern foot-ball history. The V. P. I. men usually are a shade heavier than the V. M. I. boys. But college spirit and the hot rivalry between the two usually pretty well equalizes the differences, and always insures a spirited struggle.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA'S MEN.

The University of Virginia this, year has Johnson, an old V. M. I. player and last year's star tackle, again in the line; Council, an old University of North Carolina man, is again at right tackle for Virginia; Spates is at right guard, where he played brilliantly last year: Pollard is again at quarter back, and Heald at half back. Both of last years will fill one place, and Brant, who played end on the second eleven last year, will replace Captain Waters of last year's teem at center, Waters failing to return. Elmer, who was a tackle on the University of Mississippi last year, will probably succeed Honston, of last year's serum at center, Waters failing to return. AT THE OTHER SCHOOLS.

AT THE OTHER SCHOOLS.

Little is known yet of the comparative strength of the V. M. I. and V. P. I. teams, but V. M. I. will have to strengthen greatly or V. P. I. to be greatly weakened before the plucky Lexingtonians ein hope to snatch the laurels from the Blacksburg men.

The annual games between Richmond College and Annolobh-Macon are always interesting and spirited, owing to the strong rivalry in athletics between the two schools. Both teams were weak last year, buy the Ashland boys were the weaker, Hampden Sidney, too, is a strong rival of the other two colleges, the three representing respectively.
